Biographical Information

Celia C. Lovell is a senior executive coach with Executive Coaching Network, Inc. (EXCN) who has over 12 years of experience with EXCN's unique coaching method. Working with major companies and other entities seeking to energize organizational performance through leadership development, Celia significantly advances the leadership skills of top executives leading to important and measurable results both for the organization and for the individual. Because of her unusual background and insight into legal and financial matters, many of the individuals Celia has coached have been top-level executives with significant financial and legal responsibilities.

Prior to joining EXCN, Celia was a leader in the Law Department of Norfolk Southern Corporation, responsible for management of 50 percent of the litigation of the corporation and successfully pursued a case before the United States Supreme Court in 1999. She made extensive use of her mentoring and coaching skills in the development of a significant number of in-house attorneys and outside counsel.

Celia is a graduate of Stanford University and the Georgetown University Law Center.

Celia is also active in community service, serving on the Boards of various charitable and educational organizations in the Washington, D.C. area.
